

Decision Due Tuesday In Beck Contempt Of Court Case

POSSIBLE FINE OR JAIL TERM IF HE'S GUILTY

Commissioner Denies Attempt to Disregard Court Citation

Madison—(P)—J. D. Beck, commissioner of the department of agriculture and markets, will learn at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon whether he was guilty of contempt of court for alleged violation of an injunction in the oleomargarine tax case.

Faced with the possibility of a jail sentence or a fine, Beck provided the climax of the contempt trial yesterday when he denied any attempt to disregard the court or to intimidate retailers of oleomargarine when he sent out lists of their names to various county newspapers along with those who do not sell the product.

Circuit Judge A. G. Zimmerman, who issued the citation at the request of Attorney Ralph Jackman of Madison, counsel for the oleo interests, reserved his decision until Tuesday. Before he determines whether Beck must be punished he will rule on the challenge of the commissioner's counsel, Daniel H. Grady, that the court has no right to restrain Beck from sending out the lists.

An insinuation that political pressure had been brought to bear by the Progressives on behalf of Beck was made by Jackman in his final arguments to the court.

He declared it was obvious that Calmer Brown, reporter for the Madison Capital Times, Progressive newspaper, was telling the truth when he quoted Beck as remarking in connection with the circulation of lists: "I want the 180,000 farmers of this state to know that there's one farmer who is not going to back down."

Alleges "Pressure"

"In view of all the political pressure that has been brought to bear on this case, it would have been possible for the young man to jig on his testimony," Jackman said.

The insinuation brought a prompt rebuff from State Senator Glenn D. Roberts, a Progressive and one of Beck's attorneys.

"I want to present the reflection brought by counsel than any pressure was brought upon any witnesses," he said.

Beck testified that he had consulted the Assistant Attorney General Samuel Becker of Milwaukee, before he sent out any lists and was told he was within his rights as long as he included the names of both dealers who do and who do not sell oleomargarine.

Grady, in his summation, declared that Attorney Jackman admitted the oleo interests sought no civil damages as a result of Beck's action. He said the commissioner had issued a denial of statements that he knew he was violating the injunction, that he had acted in good faith and was not in contempt.

Jackman cited the statutes which permit the commission to compile lists of producers and distributors of various foods. He pointed to Beck's testimony that he had never sent out any lists except those pertaining to oleomargarine.

He told the court this was evidence that Beck had a motive for circulating the names and referred to the judge's order that any attempted intimidation would constitute an unfair trade practice which was prohibited.

In view of the defense challenge that the court's injunction was invalid because it restrained a public official in the discharge of his duties and sought to prevent free speech and freedom of the press, Judge Zimmerman must pass again upon the question of the court's rights before he determines whether Beck was guilty.

SCHNEIDER LEAVES FOR WASHINGTON MONDAY

Congressman George J. Schneider expects to leave for Washington, D. C. Monday. He will deliver an address at Milwaukee Monday evening. Schneider is the secretary, left for Washington last week, to be replaced by Mr. W. B. Basing, Appletton agent, who will be in the city during the week.

Figures in Kentucky Mine Strike Murder Cases

These men are again in the limelight as the result of the opening of the first of the trials resulting from the bloody riots in the coal miners' strike at Harlan county, Ky., last summer. First to be tried is William Burnette, a striking miner, accused of slaying a deputy sheriff. His trial, which is being held at Mt. Sterling, Ky., will be followed by that of eight other men accused of ambushing and killing four deputies. Pictured here are: (1) Marion "Two-Gun" Allen, bodyguard of Circuit Judge D. C. Jones who granted a request by the state for a change of venue from Harlan; (2) George S. Ward, acting secretary of the Harlan County Coal Operators Association, who is looking after the interests of the operators at the trials; (3) Sheriff J. H. Blair of Harlan county; (4) Dr. Joseph W. Nolan, head of the American Legion post in Harlan county, who has been active in the fight against alleged communist groups in the strike zone.

Collects Turtles For Sale To Buyers On Chicago Mart

BY W. F. WINSEY
Shiocton—Catching at the rate of 700 to 800 pounds daily, G. A. Speaker, a local hunter has confined about 3000 pounds of turtles in an enclosure and is holding the catch for an upward turn in the market. He usually ships his catches to the Chicago market.

Turtles usually make their winter homes in holes in banks of rivers, ponds and lakes, originally dug by muskrats as runways to their underground dens. The main entrance to these holes and dens is under water in each case and under the frost or freezing levels. These positions of the runways give the rats underwa-

Confesses He Killed Two In California

Los Angeles—(P)—For the little sums of money and the small motor car of his itinerant laborer acquaintances, Gilbert Francis Collier, 51-year-old blacksmith, turned killer, detectives charged today as they reported the man confessed to the slaying and burning of one man and made a tentative statement on the death of another.

Collier was arrested late yesterday before the ashes of the fire in which he had endeavored to burn the body of George Walker, 35, Santa Rosa, Calif., a laborer, had cooled.

The arrest of Collier did not result, however, from the killing of Walker but came through the efforts of the family of Dale Slater, 20, a Los Angeles carpenter who had started with Collier to seek employment at Hoover dam June 18, last, and had not been heard from.

Traced to a rooming house, Collier was found asleep. A few hours previous, detectives charged, he had killed Walker in a deserted hut near Santa Ana and then set fire to the building in an effort to conceal the crime.

Questioned by police regarding the disappearance of Slater Collier said: "I will take you to the body of Slater. It is buried about five miles off the highway east of Termino. How and why he was killed will be told later—I want you to have the body first."

Collier confessed to taking Slater's automobile and forging the ownership papers, having the car transferred to him on July 21, Joseph F. Taylor, chief of detectives, charged Collier as a cold-blooded killer.

"We believe this man may have killed at least half a dozen men—maybe more—during the past year," he said.

TEACHERS' SALARIES ARE RAISED IN SPAIN

Madrid—(P)—More than six thousand school teachers have received salary increases as a result of new scales announced after the constituent assembly's approval of constitutional articles dealing with the church and education.

The new scale is $100 pesetas (about $200 annually). Formerly 1,500 teachers earned 2,500 pesetas (about $500) annually and the remainder a scant 2,000 (about $400).

SPECIAL CITIZEN'S SCHOOL COMMITTEE MEETS NEXT WEEK

Group Is Studying Situation at Senior High School

As a result of their recent visit to Appletton high school, the 18 members of the special citizen's committee organized to study the high school situation will hold its first meeting at 7:15 Monday night at Appletton high school. Henry Boon, first ward representative on the committee, is the chairman.

No definite action will be taken until the group has studied the situation thoroughly, according to the chairman. The committee has three representatives from each ward, chosen by a committee of three representing the Appletton Woman's club, the chamber of commerce and the Trades and Labor council. The purpose was to obtain a committee representing a cross section of Appletton, since the high school touches every section of the city in its enrollment, it was pointed out.

Enrollment statistics for the past eight years at the high school indicate crowded conditions, according to school authorities. They also show a steady increase of students until this year 1,084 students in three classes of high school work nearly parallel the four class enrollment in 1924-25, in which the enrollment numbered 1,104 students, including a freshman class of 384.

In the span of eight years, the number of graduating students has grown from 202 in 1924-25 to the present class of 316; sophomores have increased from 287 to nearly double that number, with 416 students; the juniors show the least growth with the present class of 336 but 100 more than eight years ago.

This year for the first time in eight years, Appletton high school has more boys than girls enrolled.

The anticipated enrollment by the end of the year will be approximately 1,100 students, according to Principal Herbert H. Heible.

LAND UTILIZATION PROGRAM IS BEING DRAWN AT CHICAGO

National Development Policy to Be First in Nation's History

Chicago—(P)—American agriculture awaited today a comprehensive program for its development. Formulated by the land utilization conference called by Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, the purpose of the program was to build a base for a national land development policy—the first in America's history.

The conference's recommendations, drafted by 15 ruralists, foresters and economists headed by Cully Cobb, southern editor, were expected to include five major points:

1. To do with submarginal or marginal lands: reforestation and other non-agricultural utilization; soil conservation; and extension of agricultural credit.

Secretary Hyde, who has been a constant conferee, called the first session together for a discussion of the summaries.

Radical departures were expected among them a change in the homestead laws. The conference displayed a keen interest in the suggestion of Dean H. W. Mumford, of the University of Illinois college of agriculture, that homesteading be banned.

Leaders in the conference said any recommendations for a defined reclamation policy would be closely watched by Congress and state legislatures in view of existing legislation.

One of the recommendations proposed before Congress was the Columbia river basin development in Washington.

The commissioner of reclamation, Edward Mearns, told the conference in his first session that reclamation must have a part in any utilization program to insure power development, watershed protection and flood control.

Conferees indicated a great share of the discussion has centered on taxation. The theme of the tax experts and land economists, from the outset, was the taxation of land on its earning ability, instead of on fixed valuations.

NO OPINION IS AVAILABLE ON GERMAN BONDS

Honest Investor Must Admit He Cannot See Through End of Situation

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE
Copyright, 1931, By Cons. Press
Wall Street, New York—(CPA)—The most difficult question that investment bankers today are asked to answer is that which comes in scores of letters and from as many telephone calls and is summed up in the query "what shall I do with my German bonds?"

The replies to the anxious holder of either of the two German government loans or of the dozens of municipal, provincial, agricultural or industrial bond issues, is necessarily unsatisfactory to the banker and to his client. The most honest man is the one who today admits that he cannot form an opinion on German dollar loans because he cannot see through clear to the end of the German economic and political situation.

As one banker with whom the writer was conversing today said to an inquirer "half a dozen different things may happen in Germany in the next few months that may either make your bonds better or worse. I own German bonds myself and am not disposed to sell them. Whether I am right or wrong in my judgment I cannot say and I do not believe any one else can."

The most gratifying feature to the holder of German dollar issues is that the service on them continues to be met. Interest is due on the 5 1/2 per cent loan on Dec. 1. It is understood that the funds to meet this interest have been in the hands of the paying agents for some time.

Every important interest and sinking fund obligation in the past four months of bewilderment over what Germany may do with her political and commercial debts has been met promptly. The worry, of course, concerns Germany's financial status when the semi-annual interest periods come around in 1932.

Light on this situation may begin to dawn soon, as today the German government has exercised its privilege of requesting the banks for international settlements to appoint a special committee to investigate her ability to pay her obligations under the Young plan. It will take some time to complete such a study. When it is finished, it should reveal facts upon which judgment may be based of the value of the non-political loans negotiated between 1924 and 1929 in the United States and now possessing a market value of less than 50 per cent of their original cost to American investors.

EATABLES ADMIT CITY CHILDREN TO BENEFIT SHOW

Swinging bags of potatoes, coffee, carrots, cookies, rice and dozens of other eatables, hundreds of youngsters lined up in front of the Fox theatre this morning for the Food show put on for the benefit of Appletton's needy. Some kiddies arrived as early as 8 o'clock, so they would be in the front lines when the doors opened at 9 o'clock. The line, which extended from the front of the theatre down Midway to Appletton-st, showed a conglomerate array of cabbages, jelly, jam, canned tomatoes, peas, corn, spaghetti, crackers, bread, breakfast foods, cocoa, macaroni, pickles, flour, sugar, which is to be turned over to the poor families of Appletton. The offerings ranged in size from three or four potatoes in a box to a huge burlap sack full of cabbages and pumpkins.

SEE BIG BOOST IN STATE MOTOR TAXES

Madison—(P)—The Wisconsin division of the American Automobile association has estimated that the motor tax bill for the state will approximate $30,350,000 this year.

On the basis of estimated taxes the average motor vehicle in Wisconsin throughout its life amount to 12.2 per cent of the average value of the vehicle, the division said.

"When the point is reached that any form of property pays taxes in excess of its value, it becomes a question of how long that form of property and the services dependent upon it can stand the strain," the division said.

Be Loyal Citizens Of U. S., Grandi Tells Sons Of Italy

Philadelphia—(P)—Americans of Italian blood can best show their natural affection for Italy, Signor Dino Grandi, foreign minister of Italy, asserts, by being loyal citizens of the United States.

Speaking in the name of his country and Mussolini, at a dinner in his honor given by the Sons of Italy last night, Signor Grandi emphasized that Americans of Italian blood are Americans, not Italians. People in Italy wish them to be the best of America's citizens, he said.

Signor Grandi and his party leave today for Baltimore after being feted here and in New York yesterday.

Last night he cited to the sons of Italy in America, "you are Americans, loyal citizens of the great republic of the stars. This is your country, to it you have given your work and your industry, your love and you are giving your descendants."

James Grafton Rogers, assistant secretary of state, spoke of the modern phases of diplomacy of discussing world affairs.

Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, and Attorney General William A. Schneider of Pennsylvania, also spoke. John di Silvestro, supreme master of the Sons of Italy, toastmaster, said he had telegraphed President Hoover and the duke that "anti-fascism was un-American."

Signor Grandi was noticeably touched by the dinner in his honor. Tears came to his eyes as he greeted mention of his name and as the Fascist hymn "Giovinezza" was sung.

Belasco Swan Song Still Waiting For Proper Cast

New York — (AP)—David Belasco believed life was a lie. That was his swan song and he never lived to hear it sung. It is in the hands now of Achmed Abdullah in the form of "Pantaloen," a play—and it may wait yet awhile until actors worthy of the Belasco tradition are found.

The great producer—until his death last May the dean of them all—wrote the play in collaboration with Abdullah, and so says the latter, he meant it to be the symbol of his own philosophy.

His philosophy was: Remove and forgiving will in itself do away with evil.

The play concerns the theatre. For the characters the theatre man drew upon his ancestors, and made Pantaloen and Harlequin the chief dispensers of his philosophy. Belasco's father was a famous Pantaloen of England. His grandfather was a Harlequin, and ancestors before him fought to the middle ages before being shownmen of one type or another.

"It's good theatre," says Abdullah, "nothing highbrow, symbolic, but interpreted in strict terms of life—it's a play for the masses."

Harlequin delivers the theme, a prologue:

"Sirs: I beg your pardon, I do not mean to disturb you. But—do you know what is back yonder—back stage? No? Permit me to tell you then, sirs: Back yonder is truth—my mistress. Truth and I are lovers. For the sake of Truth, I change the patches on my suit day after day. Why? Because Truth changes. Because Truth is never twice alike. Because Truth is a thing in motley and bells. Aye! Truth is the road down which I travel. Truth speaks under my feet all day.

Therefore, should there be any liars amongst you, sirs, will you not have the goodness to leave the theatre—so that Truth may not shock you—or, better, that you may not shock Truth? Ah! No one departs?"

—By my stomach! Now then—between men and men—pardon! I perceive some ladies in the audience. All truthful ladies I entreat to remain. But as to those who are addicted to lies and gossip—out with them! Do I see right? Not a lady departs! Good—by my tail! We are all friends. And so—Ladies and sirs (pulling curtain aside) behold Truth!"

"Love is . . . your pardon, ladies and sirs. We are at a play—not at a sermon . . ."

And the play goes on.

Mr. Belasco spent the last two years of his life working on the piece, Abdullah helping with dialogue.

A character dies in the first act. He is alive again in the third. Remove and forgiving bring him back.

Abdullah says the play will be expensive to produce and difficult to cast.

"It requires two Barrymores—and both of them are in Hollywood," he said. "Columbine must be a great emotional actress—there is none."

EMPLOYEES TO WORK UNTIL "FREEZE UP"

Employees of the street department will continue their work until the first "freeze up," according to Theodore Albrecht, street commissioner. When water starts freezing on paved streets work will be abandoned until next spring. Regular employees of the department will be hired next winter as snow shovelers. In the event of heavy snow storms, the department will employ approximately 100 shovelers to clean streets, Mr. Albrecht stated.

New York—In our study of balance sheets we have now arrived at the point where we can add two items to the imaginary setup we have been taking as an illustration. Suppose this to be the statement of the United States Manufacturing Company as of Jan. 1, 1931.

Assets
Plant	$1,000,000
Goodwill	100,000
Inventories	200,000
Sales Receivable	100,000
Cash	100,000
Liabilities
Capital Stock	$1,000,000
Shares of $100 par	10,000
Bills Payable	50,000
Reserves	100,000
Surplus	100,000

The two new items are goodwill and the reserve for depreciation. Goodwill is the intangible asset which the accountants estimate and record to good will. We are not concerned with how the firm estimates its value in the statement but as to the bearing on the value of the securities.

A POLITICAL COMMISSION?
It is not exactly easy to understand why the governor should be criticized for requesting the next legislature to empower the Emergency Unemployment Commission with authority over the millions in relief funds to be turned over for local construction purposes. It is said that this is a political commission. It is claimed that a political handling of the funds will result and be disastrous. It is even asserted that the commission is without talent, understanding or vigor.

Of course everything having to do with our government takes on more or less of a political complexion. To say that the political handling of a proposition is disastrous is to mean that it has been handled solely for political effects and purposes or that men have been given positions on account of their political faith and without regard to their abilities.

How can we expect to have rule by the people if they are permitted merely the right to elect their governor and he is then hog-tied, blindfolded and gagged and yet held responsible for all results, good or bad, does not make itself quite evident.

The real political appointment on the Emergency Unemployment Commission is that of Herman L. Ekern. There are few men in the Progressive ranks, if indeed there are any, who exceed Mr. Ekern in ability, experience or the integrity with which he has executed public trusts, and he has supervised a great number. Of course, when Mr. Ekern gets into a political campaign he oftentimes paints vivid and startling pictures and sometimes silhouettes that would get a gleeful hand even in a nursery. That may be called the "intoxication of public speaking."

But the conduct of this commission insofar as its many conferences and decisions have been made public has indicated a practical coloring at all times, a constant expenditure of energy and a pretty sensible gathering of results.

When it comes to turning over these funds to the various communities this commission must act in an entirely judicial capacity and pass upon merits and nothing else. Before we assail it as being a political commission let us first try to get any odd number of men together, take a straw vote and see whether a majority do not favor some political party or faction.

How could it be otherwise?

THE REASON FOR SINO

With the Jap and Chinaman at each other's throats periodicals are digging deeper into the reason for the expression Sino-Japanese instead of Chino-Japanese.

The word Sino may puzzle many not familiar with Chinese history. Its derivation goes back to ancient times. China was Sinae to the Greeks and Sinae to the Romans. From these is derived the French word Sino-logue, which English has adopted to denote a student of the Chinese language. Sino-logist is that branch of knowledge which deals with the Chinese language and related subjects.

China has gone by numerous names in Europe. Sin, Chin, Sinae and China were names produced through ancient contacts between the East and the West through southern sea routes.

The northern overland routes of trade brought in Sere, a name given by the Greeks to a people now identified as the Chinese who first sold silk to Athens and Rome. Hence came the English words sericulture, serge and finally silk. Marco Polo speaks of Cathay, meaning that country which is now China.

None of these names was ever used by the Chinese in describing their own country, although Sin and Chin may be traced to early Chinese dynasties.

By its own people the country has been known as Chung Kwoh, The Middle Kingdom or Country, or Chung Hwa Kwoh, The Central Flowery

Country. The new democracy has given birth to The Middle Flowery People's Country.

Sino-Japanese or Chino-Japanese are both proper in referring to the present controversy in Manchuria, but the former is generally used by all sinologists.

LEWIS' STRANGE FAME

The death the other day of Colonel Isaac Newton Lewis is a reminder of the queer kind of fame that some men win.

Colonel Lewis had fame—a great deal of it—and it still endures. His name dots almost every page of any history of the fighting in the World war; it will live, perhaps, for centuries, unless men find some way of doing without armies, navies and military airplanes. Yet his name, in itself, means nothing whatever to the ordinary citizen.

Briefly, Colonel Lewis was the inventor of the Lewis machine gun. He resigned from the American army shortly before the World war began, in order to submit his new weapon to foreign governments—the United States government not being able, at that time, to work up much interest in it.

English army officers found in the gun just what they had been looking for. They ordered thousands of the colonel's light, simply-constructed machine guns, and during the war the weapon proved one of the British infantry's best friends. Aviators used them extensively; when America entered the war the United States ordered quantities of them. Colonel Lewis became extremely wealthy, and his name got into the records of innumerable battles.

And that, when you stop to think about it, is a queer way to win fame—to have one's name given to an instrument of death. Not one man in a thousand knows anything about Colonel Lewis himself; but everyone knows about the Lewis gun. Colonel Lewis seems destined to go down to history in company with the illustrious Dr. Guillotin of France.

No one, except a historian, knows anything about Dr. Guillotin—but what literate human being has failed to hear of the guillotine? The doctor, as it happens, was a humane Frenchman who devised a beheading machine in order to make the deaths of condemned criminals as quick and painless as possible; a few years later the French Revolution came along to make the instrument a world-famous symbol of blood and terror.

There are others in the same company. There is Colonel Shrapnel, of the British army—you can guess what he invented. There is Count von Zeppelin, who—during the war, at least—was known for the horror that lurked in the night skies.

It is a strange, rather uncomfortable way to win fame.

FEATHERED HATS

Conservationists and lovers of bird life are considerably concerned over the new fads in women's hats. While the Eugenie hat is losing its favor among the latest stylists, it is leaving in its wake a returning demand for the feathered decorations which created such adverse agitation earlier in the century.

The old picture hats of the "gay nineties" and the decade which followed were glorious creations. The billowy ostrich plumes and aigrettes along with the wings and feathers of birds of all species put to shame the best head-adornments of Indian chieftains or Congo medicine men. To wear them in the early days of motoring meant tying them down with yards of veil. They would have made excellent parachutes for the flyers of today.

Their feathered decorations, however, became a serious menace to bird life. The aigrette craze caused the near extermination of the white heron. In Florida where these birds bred by hundreds of thousands, they became exceedingly rare. The hat market's demand for feathers and fancy wings made such inroads on our birds that laws were passed prohibiting their use.

Recent arrests by conservation officers disclose that song birds are again being destroyed by hunters working for the hat market. Prosecutions under the law should be prompt to stop this practice.

Fashions are insidious but they must not be permitted to revive a condition menacing to our song birds. Every woman purchaser of a hat should look askance at its feather decorations to determine to her own satisfaction if laws have been violated and cruelty perpetrated.

A gent down in Oklahoma—the successful lawyer in defending 394 out of 342 men accused of murder, and who got by without a single death penalty in the 38 cases he lost—has decided to return to the ministry. Maybe it's a noble gesture to atone for all the return to the profession he's left 36 years ago, but it occurs to at least a few questioning minds that the gent has packed away a flock of money in that time, too.

George: My wife is like an angel.

George: Yes, she's always up in the air, always harping on something and she never has anything to wear.
—Dee Jay Cee

Comes the news that the Mayor of Chicago, Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York, Joan Crawford, Claudette Colbert, Lupe Velez, Jean Harlow, Raquel Torres and Sally O'Neill—not to mention Ames and Andy and Paul Whiteman—will be at the Notre Dame-Southern California game today.

Yeah, and the five gents from Appleton who got us to wire to the old homestead in South Bend for tickets to the game, will be there. Fortunately hounds!

But that, of course, eliminates the only good excuse for not getting the Monday column in on time today.

The mayor of Chicago has ordered the police to clear the city of panhandlers. He reached his decision after walking down Michigan avenue and being stopped for a touch by eight different men. Which must be a novel experience for Chicagoans. Not the panhandlers, Tillie, but the idea of the mayor WALKING down the street. The one they had before this one wasn't in town much anyway, and when he did go down the street it took a big car and a couple of motorcycle officers at least.

It's supposed to be getting colder these days and maybe it's just as well. People are getting tired of hearing about the second crop of strawberries, the people who have been going in swimming and the shy little violets which have been peeping out again for the umpteenth time. We aren't so strong for cold weather, but neither have we picked strawberries, violets or have we been in swimming lately.

Just Folks
By Edgar A. Guest

TO A FAITHLESS TOOTH

Farewell old tooth; comes now our parting day. Though long I've tried to keep you from decay I must get rid of you, the doctors say.

Down through the years I've worn you in my gum, Fed you and loved you; now my heart grows numb; They tell me, too, my poisoner you've become!

After long years of friendship can it be That you, all unobserved, should turn on me And plot worse tortures than an enemy?

Sharing my smile, my thought and tender care, Trusted and cherished, is it kind or fair For you to be the root of my despair?

I who have loved you from my earliest youth, By spying doctors now am told the truth: "The foe that works such evil is a tooth!"

When friends prove false then bitter is the blow. One cannot cope with foes he doesn't know. So faithless cuspid—out today you go!

Never again through juicy steak or crust, Or pie, or chicken shall your form be thrust; I'm going to get a false tooth I can trust.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

NATURAL METHODS VERSUS BREATHING MACHINES

Speaking of methods of restoring inspiration when breathing has failed, a distinguished surgeon said he was reminded of an experience of a physician in a prison who used a pulmotor for a patient who collapsed. Six months after the patient was buried it was found that someone had substituted a nitrous oxide (laughing gas) cylinder for the oxygen cylinder in the machine.

That was no fault of the machine, but it was significant enough. As the surgeon remarked, with mouth-to-mouth insufflation you will not make any such mistake.

For certain cases of paralysis the Drinker cabinet breathing apparatus is invaluable, of course, for with this breathing machine artificial respiration may be continued without interruption for days or weeks if necessary, whereas it would be virtually impossible to continue any other method, whether with machine or by hand, so long without exhaustion of the patient.

All other breathing machines such as pulmotors or lungmotors, are not only less effective than natural methods but they are more dangerous to the patient, even in the hands of trained physicians or surgeons. In the hands of firemen or policemen these machines are deadly and the municipality that authorizes or permits the use of such machines by such first aid crews lays itself open to claims for damages when the relatives or heirs of the deceased can get postmortem evidence of the violence upon the lungs.

An inhalator, a mere rubber bag in which oxygen and carbon dioxide gas may be mixed for the victim to inhale, is the only machinery or apparatus which is justifiable in any case of asphyxiation by gas, smoke or fumes, or in any case of drowning or electric shock. This should be used in conjunction with natural manual methods that the victim may have the advantage of the 7 per cent carbon dioxide mixture in oxygen or air. The carbon dioxide is a powerful stimulus to breathing; pure oxygen is not.

Mouth to mouth insufflation gives the victim perhaps 5 per cent carbon dioxide in air. So this method should be resorted to, in conjunction with prone pressure or other manual method, in any case. Place a plain towel over any patient's mouth, or a few layers of gauze or a clean handkerchief, gently pinning it to the face, take a deep breath while the operator bears down on the patient's chest, and then blow into the mouth when the operator leans back to rest. Repeat this for several minutes if necessary. It is nearly if not quite as effective as the use of the inhalator with prone pressure respiration. It is not dangerous, for it is scarcely possible to produce excessive pressure in the lungs of an adult by this means; you might do harm by blowing too hard into the mouth of a baby.

It is high time for intelligent communities to scrap these spectacular breathing machines and cut out the Toonerville comedy of the firemen or policemen or other near-experts rushing with their gadgets to the scene of an emergency, even brushing aside physicians in their eagerness to have their pictures in the paper.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Another Temporary Miracle
They call him a miracle healer. He diagnoses without even questioning patients. Long lines of automobiles wait along the street before his house daily, people who come from distant places. He is also clairvoyant. (Mrs. H. M.)

Answer: The morose portion of the population must have some such thrill every so often. If this particular bird did not pretend to have "supernatural" "clairvoyant" powers, the crows wouldn't have much faith in him.

Overwork is Overworked
I suffered from a slight attack of paralysis brought on from overwork and mental strain. (B. L. C.)

Answer: Don't try to kid me, brother. The "overwork" and "brain strain" stuff may be all right to give out to the nosy neighbors. But I know better.

Troubles We May Talk About
Please tell me where one can get the book, "Troubles We Don't Talk About" by a Dr. Montague, which you recommended. (A. M.)

Answer—Published by Lippincott's, Philadelphia, Pa. Any book dealer will procure it for you. Your public library probably has it.

Another Is De-Luded
Since I arrived at my eighteenth birthday 10 pounds overweight, mother insist that some kind of corset is necessary to prevent me from "spreading out." Please advise me about this. I am employed at sedentary office work and my favorite recreation is just reading. (A. L.)

Answer—The day you begin wearing the corset say a fond good bye to all your youthful trimness or grace. I advise you to go on without the corset, and give more thought to your physical training—swimming, playing tennis, daily walks, dancing, skating, even regular daily home gymnastics, will best help you to keep trim.

Spectacles Make Him Sore
Can you suggest some substance to harden the skin over bridge of nose and behind the ears so I can wear my glasses comfortably? (D. J. E.)

Answer—No. Better change the frames to another type, so that the friction and pressure will come at other places.

The Tynmites
By Hal Cochran

THE fairy floated round in air and Double Knot cried, "Well, look there! She is a magic fairy and you'll find she's very kind. How would you like to have her land upon the ground and shake your hand?" "Oh, my, please make her do it," shouted Scouty. "We won't mind."

Of Double Knot then motioned to the pretty little fairy, who soon floated down and landed near the band of Tynmites. Said she, "I know who you lads are, and you have traveled near and far. You're brave and bold adventurers and you've seen a lot of sights."

"Before I'm through you'll see some more, 'cause I have thrilling things in store. Of course you must be good boys, or I'll eat right out of sight." "Oh, please don't do that," Clowny cried. "We've all been good, whenever we've tried. We'll promise our behavior, fairy friend, will be all right."

Then Mister Double Knot broke in and shouted with a silly grin, "Please don't forget, I am the one who brought the fairy here. If she's to bring you lots of fun, a kindly deed I've surely done. Why don't you Tynnies give of Double Knot a friendly cheer?"

The Tynnies cried, with all their might, "Hip, hip, huray! You are all right!" Then Double Knot bowed low and said, "Oh, thanks for that huray! And now the fairy lass can do a favor, if she's willing to. Please give me frog legs with your wand, so I can hop away."

The fairy said, "All right, I will." She waved her wand, and what a thrill! Frog legs appeared on Double Knot. It gave the boys a fright. But when he jumped off of the ground they knew that he was safe and sound. It only took a few jumps till he disappeared from sight.

The fairy uses her wand again in the next story.

A Bystander In Washington

BY HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington—Two college youths in the gay nineties pursued different trails in the far west for the geological survey.
One Herbert Clark Hoover, was working in the Sierra Nevada mountains of California; the other George Otis Smith, was in the field in Washington state.
At one time, though they were in different sections of the west, they worked under the same general boss—but they never met. Their trails never crossed until both were in the opposite end of the country in the national capital.

Today the two are at the center of seething senatorial seas, one a President of the nation and the other as chairman of the federal power commission by presidential nomination.

The senate is seeking in court to establish its right to revoke the confirmation of Smith's nomination.

10-Year Association
Real association between Hoover and Smith dates back nearly 10 years when the former was secretary of commerce and Smith let go the reins as director of the geological survey for a year to act as a member of the federal fact-finding coal commission.

One day, Smith tells the story on himself, the preliminary draft of a commission report came back after its rounds of various governmental offices.

Along the margins of the manuscript were a series of penciled suggestions which did not conform with Smith's ideas. He aired his objections vehemently to a companion, who said: "The secretary of commerce is having lunch with some of us today. Why don't you come along and tell him?"

Smith went along and immediately began numbering on his fingers before Hoover his objections to the marginal notations. Then the truth came out—that the suggestions were all written in by Hoover's own hand.

Smith smiles now to tell of it: "We had a rather lively lunch hour."

Proud He's From Maine
Incidentally, there are two things in which Smith takes great pride. One is that it is "a Maine Yankee"—and all through his long service in Washington he has maintained his legal residence in Skowhegan, Me.—and the other is his early training in his father's country newspaper plant.

Before and after school, and on Saturdays, he says, "I'd make a little pin money in father's shop—setting type, by hand of course, and helping out where needed."

One of his proudest possessions, that he keeps in his desk, is a copy of a story he wrote for his father's paper when he was 14. Then as in later life, his interest was in power for his country was Skowhegan's electric light plant.

SMASH HINDENBURG LINE
On Nov. 21, 1917, Lieutenant General Julian Byrne, commanding British forces, smashed the Hindenburg line on a 30-mile front from Arras to St. Quentin to a depth of one to five miles.

The foremost British lines reached to within four miles west of Cambrai which was a railway center of German communication.

Thirteen villages and more than 9000 prisoners were taken by the British.

This was one of the greatest British efforts of the war. It culminated four days of assault with all possible zeal.

Meanwhile, British forces in Palestine advanced five miles northwest of Jerusalem.

The House of Commons adopted an amendment to the Electoral Bill disenfranchising conscientious objectors to war.

Statisticians report that the country has been eating less candy the last few months. We don't know whether to blame that on prohibition or those Empress Eugenie hats.

What have you got to be thankful for this year?

PLENTY

In shirts, for example, you have more beauty today per dollar than you ever saw in neckbands and the only man who could look at these assortments and still sit tight would perhaps be Gandhi.

Shirts that actually look $3.00 are selling this Fall . . . this store . . . at $1.95.

Neckwear that we are tying over our finger at $1 is the same quality that you've paid $2 for lots and lots of times.

FARMERS TOLD HOW TO SELECT STOCK RATION

Morning Meeting of Shiocton Farmers' Institute Is Called Off

BY W. F. WINSETT
This morning's meetings of the Farmers' Institute which opened yesterday at Shiocton high school was postponed because of poor attendance.

At the time set for opening the meeting only three persons were in attendance and two more came later in the morning.

It was expected that a large number of people would attend the afternoon session of the institute and the home economics demonstration, beginning at 2 o'clock. Speakers at the institute this afternoon were to be E. J. Delwich, head of the experimental station at Ashland and Door-croft, H. G. Frost, Stevens Point, expert in the use of fertilizers; Gus Sell, Outagamie county agent, and W. D. Brownson, Smith-Hughes instructor at Shiocton high school.

Economical feeding of dairy cattle and the value of fertilizers in the raising of farm crops were stressed by speakers and farmers at the opening session of the institute Friday afternoon.

Through the use of the Feed Buyers' Guide prepared and issued by Outagamie County Agricultural agent and the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, County Agent, G. A. Sell explained how in a very few minutes time they might figure out the most economical dairy ration based on feeds such as hay, corn and small grain raised on the farms. Using ground corn at 100 per cent feeding value, or $15.00 per ton, he compared all the other popular feeds that, as for instance, barley, wheat, bran, linseed meal, alfalfa hay, timothy hay, corn silage and oat feed. With farmers knowing the prices of the ingredients in a balanced ration and the feeding values of the various feeds in a balanced ration, and using a pencil, Mr. Sell showed those present how it would be possible for them to economize considerably in the purchase of feed and still maintain a production. He showed the farmers eight balanced dairy rations in the Feed Buyers' Guide from which farmers might select the one that connected best and most economically with the hay, corn and small grain raised on the farm. Mr. Sell spoke highly of oat feed as an emergency, economical substitute for timothy hay.

Fertilizers Pay

In another talk on fertilized demonstrations in Outagamie county in 1931, Mr. Sell used records to show how on plots on the farms of Len Van Stratten and Leland Peep, both of Shiocton an application of 200 pounds of 0-20-0 commercial fertilizer had increased barley yields from 32.6 bushels per acre in unfertilized plots to 40.2 bushels per acre in fertilized plots. He called attention to the fact that the fertilizer will be heard from next summer in increased crop of hay.

Harold G. Frost, Stevens Point, a fertilizer specialist, making use of statistics called attention to the great increase in the amount of fertilizers used in raising of potatoes and other farm crops the past few years. As one illustration he stated that the potato growers about Antigo used 699 tons of commercial fertilizer in 1926; 1,500 tons in 1927; 2,800 tons in 1928; 2,000 tons in 1929; and 4,000 tons in 1930.

ARIEL WILL PUBLISH LOWER CLASS PICTURES

A departure from usual procedure will be made in the making of this year's Ariel. Lawrence College yearbook, according to Marshall Wiley, editor.

It is planned this year to include individual pictures of members of the freshman and sophomore classes so that the book will be more highly valued by the underclassmen. It is years past only the individual pictures of the upperclassmen were included in the book, while group pictures of the two lower classes were all that was deemed necessary.

23-YEAR-OLD ROMANCE RESULTS IN WEDDING

Omaha, Neb. (P)—A romance of 23 years ago has been climaxed here with the marriage of the principals. They are Polesman Earl O. Risk of the Omaha force, and Mrs. Anna Skow Jewell, Risk.

After several years of steady company, Risk and Miss Skow quarreled. That was in 1908. In 1910, Miss Skow married John Jewell, Omaha. Risk never married.

Two years ago Jewell died. Six months later Risk and Mrs. Jewell were again. The romance prospered and yesterday they were married at Papillion, Neb.

Ideal Fall Weather Has Been Help To Contractors

One of the most ideal falls in years—that's what many old timers are saying.

Building contractors and construction men are probably rejoicing the most as ideal weather during the past month has given them ample time to put their projects under cover before the first snow flake falls.

Thursday was Nov. 19 and thus far not a snowflake has fallen, and the ground was still free of frost, giving farmers plenty of time to finish their fall plowing.

The phenomenal autumn weather has brought with it many freaks of nature. Children in some sections of Outagamie county reported picking violets, lilac bushes and some fruit trees blossomed for a second time, and several residents report their "bridal wreath" bushes in second bloom—all of which is attributed to moderate temperatures and late summer rains.

It was much colder during November last year, as is evidenced by some of the low morning temperatures recorded by George Allan, Menasha lock tender and official weather venter for this district.

The mean morning temperature for the first 18 days this month was 40 degrees above zero, compared to 39 degrees above zero for all of November, 1930. The mean noon temperature for the same period this month was 54.6 degrees above zero compared to 48 degrees above zero for November last year.

The lowest morning temperature recorded thus far this month was 25 degrees above zero on Nov. 6. Only on two other occasions did the thermometer drop to the freezing point. Both times, Nov. 4 and Nov. 12 it registered 32 degrees.

Last year in November the lowest morning temperature was two degrees above zero on Nov. 21. On Nov. 23 it registered three degrees above zero, and on Nov. 29, it was 10 degrees above. On Nov. 18 last year the mercury dropped to 15 degrees above zero.

The highest noon temperature thus far this month was registered on Nov. 9 when the mercury climbed to 67 degrees. The highest in November last year was 69 degrees above zero on Nov. 22. The low noon temperature so far this month was 43 degrees above zero on Nov. 6. Last year the low was 12 degrees above zero on Nov. 27.

The fire killed Chief Officer B. C. Rippey, Richmond, Calif.; Third Mate John Gannon, Point Richmond, Calif.; and Henry Jorgensen, San Francisco, pumpman.

Stanley Duddick, 20, of North Owamunga, New York, a spectator, fell into the bay and suffered a fracture of his back. He died several hours after the explosion.

All of the injured were expected to recover with the possible exception of Capt. Oscar J. Landahl of Berkeley, Calif., skipper of the tanker.

4 Killed, 9 Are Hurt In Ship Blast

San Francisco (P)—Caught in a roaring fire created by three explosions aboard the standard oil tanker, Charles Watson, three men burned to death here yesterday and a fourth, who fell from a piling at the dock where the tanker was moored, was injured fatally. Nine other men were injured.

A leaking pump line through which the tanker was discharging gasoline was blamed for the explosion. The ship was damaged considerably, but its owners said the hull probably was not broken.

The fire killed Chief Officer B. C. Rippey, Richmond, Calif.; Third Mate John Gannon, Point Richmond, Calif.; and Henry Jorgensen, San Francisco, pumpman.

It Is Said--

That even the school year speeds by, according to grade reports at Appleton high school. Twelve weeks of school will be completed next Wednesday, which means that two-thirds of the first semester of school is gone.

That galoshes made their first obvious appearance Friday morning. Whether they were utilized to protect ankles from the pelting rain, or whether they were a precaution against snow before night, nobody knows, but anyway, they were dragged out of the closet by fair maidens this morning.

KLEIN LAUDS HOOVER HOME BUILDING PLANS

Kansas City (P)—Operation of President Hoover's proposed plan for redistricting small mortgage loans on urban and farm properties, used for homes is said by Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, to rest upon a cooperative arrangement, "the kind of arrangement which has made American business strong and efficient."

Dr. Klein, speaking before the Missouri State League of Building and Loan associations last night, read a telegram from President Hoover asking the cooperation of the league's members.

Dr. Klein said the plan would tend to loosen frozen assets and stimulate home building and home ownership.

FOOT HEALTH

By GEORGE C. DAME

Don't Neglect Foot Troubles
Your foot trouble—whatever it is—will not correct itself. The chances are that it will steadily grow worse unless it has the proper attention and scientific treatment.

The causes are usually found in the shoes that are selected without regard to foot conditions. Too often, shoes are bought because "that style looked so well on Jane" or because "Tom says they're the most comfortable he's ever had." Your feet may be different—the type of shoe you wear must be chosen accordingly.

A Few Suggestions
There are styles of footwear—those with extremely pointed toes and extremely high heels—against which I warn you. Use common sense in the selection of your shoes.

If you have been wearing high heeled shoes, and a change to low heels is necessary, make the change gradually.

Don't wear shoes that are too tight. They shut off the circulation and cramp the muscles. Shoes that are too short hinder the normal action of the foot and are sure to cause trouble.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Mrs. M. L.: My feet seem to become hot and tired and if I walk or stand to any extent, they blister easily. Have you any suggestion which might help me?

Answer: Your trouble is probably caused by the fact that your feet are not in the correct position in your shoe. Your foot moves and causes a friction which tends to put back in its proper position, or you need a pad under your heel, or perhaps if this is not sufficient to remedy the trouble you had better see your Doctor and have him bandage your foot in its proper place and keep it that way until the foot muscles are strong enough to hold it there by itself.

Mr. Dame will be glad to help you with your foot problems if you will write, phone or see him at DAME'S BOOT SHOP, 203 W. College Ave. Appleton

Use Of Car Problem Of Modern Age

BY ANGELO PATRI

Modern parents have a problem that did not trouble their own fathers and mothers. The motor car has taken the place of the horse and buggy and now comes the question, "Shall the boy or the girl of the family be allowed to use the car for their own social affairs?"

Of course that depends first upon the character of the young person. There are boys and girls of eighteen and nineteen who are as mature as they will be at thirty and as dependable. But they are few and far between. Most young people of this age are carefree and adventurous, out for a thrill. I am the last to blame them. Youth is the time for to strengthen the significance of the entire story of Christianity in the minds of the little folks. The youngsters will sing "Vesper Hymn," a Russian air, Sunday afternoon, and participate in the Netherlands folk song, "Prayer of Thanksgiving."

3 PROJECTS BOOMED IN NORTHWEST U. S.

Columbia River Program Expected to Gain Support in Congress

Seattle —(P)—Cheered by the prospects of gaining congressional cooperation in the Columbia river development program, to cost between $170,000,000 and $190,000,000, advocates of three equally glamorous projects are receiving more substantial consideration in the northwest.

One of these is the driving of a truck and automobile tunnel through the backbone of the towering Cascade range to link interior and coastal Washington more closely and provide facilities for handling the greatly increased produce supply expected from the agricultural empire the Columbia river development will create.

The second is the building of the projected Alaska-Tuam-Pacific highway through to Fairbanks with a view to eventual extension from Nome to Bering Strait. Thus, with a ferry boat connection of about 60 miles there would be an automobile route connecting North America and Europe.

A third is for freight and passenger line air service connecting the two continents.

With that portion of the automobile route as far as Fairbanks pronounced feasible by a joint United States-Canadian commission, at an estimated cost of $12,000,000, highway enthusiasts view it as a means of creating a great scenic drive through the far north and into Europe by way of Siberia.

Chicago —(P)—Gordon C. Thorne, wealthy Beverly Hills, Calif., resident, won his fight yesterday to avoid payment of a $5,000 check.

Italian Atmosphere Adds Zest To Capital Society

BY SUE McNAMARA
Washington —(P)—Italian smartness lent a fresh zest this week to Washington's early-season social doings.

The visit of Signor and Signora Dino Grandi brought forth brilliant functions at the White House; at "Woodley," home of Secretary and Mrs. Stimson; the Italian embassy and the Pan-American Union. Then there were lesser events complementary to these state dinners and receptions.

President and Mrs. Hoover entertained at dinner Wednesday evening for Premier Mussolini's youthful foreign minister and his wife, Signora Grandi, dressed in white, sat on the president's right and Signora de Martino, wife of the Italian ambassador, sat on his left. Mrs. Hoover sat between Signor Grandi and Ambassador de Martino.

Many distinguished guests were there, and the brightly uniformed marine band orchestra played throughout the evening. Yellow chrysanthemums, maiden hair ferns and tall candlesticks decorated the table.

The amber lorgnette of Signora de Martino, Scheidel smartly gowned women from many lands at the reception and tea given at the Italian embassy Wednesday afternoon in honor of the Grandis.

The lorgnette had a gold tassel. Held regally in the hand of Signora de Martino, who was handsomely gowned in black velvet brocade in silvery grey, it swept over an assemblage which was just one of the many events attending the brief visit here of the distinguished Italian.

The reception at the Italian embassy was given by the Italian-American society. The palatial embassy was dedicated by Signor Grandi several years ago when he was here on a visit.

The personable black-headed minister eyed approvingly the mellow glow and charm of the rooms, the inner court with its shrubs and flowers, and its glimpse of the sky.

Panel paintings reached from floor to ceiling of the reception room. Tall vases of bronze chrysanthemums were on the mantel.

Signora de Martino's costume suited her tall, distinguished figure. The sleeves were full and flowing, caught in at the cuff, and the lower half of the skirt was accordeon-pleated.

Signora Grandi was gowned in black satin, simply cut. She wore a single strand of pearls. Her silver belt buckle matched the design on her black bag. Her small black hat was ornamented only by a black bow.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Ernest Lee Jahnce were hosts at the first official "at home" of the season Tuesday afternoon at the Mayflower. Officers of the navy and their wives were the guests.

Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, wife of the secretary of the navy, Mrs. David S. Ingalls, wife of the assistant secretary of the navy for aviation and Miss Adele Townsend Jahnce, vivacious blonde laughter of the host and hostess, helped receive.

British officers from the cruiser H. M. S. "Delhi" which visited Washington this week, added color and dash to the scene.

Hunting is in full swing now. That section of capital society which loves horses betakes itself from the sophisticated talk of tea tables to the tang of outdoors, the frothy morning near the mountains of Virginia. They ride hard all coming home at night to lovely old colonial homes in which they are guests, to gather round the fire and recount the day's experiences.

Mrs. William E. Borah, wife of the senator from Idaho, this week witnessed the open steeplechase held at "Llanollen," the John Hay Whitney estate at Upperville. The horses raced three miles over brush.

The old "black mirrors" of the imposing British embassy are already giving encouraging reflections of distinguished guests in their shadowed depths.

Lady Lindsay, who had to almost entirely withdraw from social life last year on account of ill-health, is again receiving.

Luncheon guests one day this week were the Maharajah of Burma, wealthy Bengal prince, Mrs. J. M. Robertson, Mrs. J. M. Robertson Harriman, General John J. Pershing, Mr. Frank B. Noyes, and the military attache of the British embassy, Col. Maurice Fitzmaurice Day.

GIVE FAREWELL PARTY FOR MRS. R. E. ANNUNSON

Black Creek—A group of friends and neighbors surprised Mrs. R. E. Annunson at a farewell party Thursday afternoon. The family will move to Tony next week. Guests included Mesdames A. M. Mandl, N. A. Shand, E. S. Maas, Sherman McGlin, Louise Kaplin, Alfred Fiehl, Walter Irving, George Schwister, John Haus, Irving Grunwaldt, Anton Tuxier, Jesse Sager, R. E. Sanden, Misses Anne Schwister and Gladys Shauger.

Prizes at bridge were won by Mrs. Annunson and Miss Anne Schwister and the prizes at sheephead were won by Mrs. Traxler and Mrs. Sager.

Prize winners at the weekly card party at the town hall Thursday evening were John Kitzinger, William Neft, Frank Block, skat; Elias Rettler, Mrs. Sherman McGlin, sheephead; Miss Elizabeth Huber, Mrs. W. A. Shaw, five hundred; Miss Helen Stadler, burro.

Walker, a warm friend of Governor Reinhold, as their case pleader.

When he was five years old, Aaron Sapro peddled matches on the streets of San Francisco. With Harris Weinstein in the Sacramento valley he became interested in co-operative marketing, after his graduation from the Hebrew union college at Cincinnati, and this work absorbed his career thereafter. At the time he came to the Ford territory, supposedly for $140,000, he moved to New York and became engaged in various cooperative enterprises. He headed the Independent Moving Picture Producers and in 1929, was elected president of the Midtown bank.

Who's News Today

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press New York—(CFA)—"He's an even-tempered man—that is, he is always mad." The late California congressman, William H. Johnson, a d quoting Horace's conference to one of the leading isolationists of Rome.

Kent, Meyer Lissner of Los Angeles a 4 four or five others were meeting in Oakland to pick a St. George to fight the southern Pacific dragon. Johnson, the fighting lawyer who picked up the San Francisco graft prosecution when Francis J. Henry was shot, was selected to run for governor. The wealthy and laconic Kent was the mace of the campaign. Johnson won. That was the beginning of the political career of Senator Hiram Johnson, goading Herbert Hoover today with an acid suggestion that he'd better quit.

Kent's classical ascription of chronic spleen was somewhat unjust. Two biographers must be put to work if the real story of Hiram Johnson is ever told—one to trace the hard matrix of undying hatreds of the angriest man in public life, and the other to portray the kindly, mellow and almost wistful aspect of Hiram Johnson with his family, his friends, his airedale dog and his pipe.

Rancor and Chauvinistic hatreds hung like a fog over the Sacramento valley when Hiram Johnson was born. He had been hanging Belle and Bill Cora awhile back and high-calibered explosives popped like lightning. Congressman Grove L. Johnson, Hiram's father, was human and humorous. He looked like Rumpelstiltskin, with no necktie under his busy white beard and a huge diamond on his collar button. He liked to tease Hiram and Hiram, blessing him with the "old gang," fought him as savagely as the others.

Hiram was the most belligerent governor California ever had, and, they say out there, the best. He fumigated the state and brought it up to date. His honesty has never been assailed. When he went to the senate, he had to borrow money to get to Washington. Iron-jawed and gladiatorial, he is still standing at armageddon—the scene of his first national booking, with Theodore Roosevelt.

In a white-pillared, wistaria hung southern mansion he began a noble career memorialized last night by the presentation of a gold medal to a Martha McChesney Berry by the town hall club.

"Pa ex got him a bible, only he can't read it," said a grimy mountain lad, on an errand to the Berry place. Miss Berry started telling the boys bible stories, Sunday afternoons. The audience of the "Sunday Lady" grew. She found an old log cabin and opened her first school. Her family and relatives were shocked, but the collins were danced without her. For 23 years she worked and fought valiantly, gathering and letting light into the dark recesses of the hills. Practical agricultural headed her curriculum. Her schools have turned out 2,500 trained farmers, 371 teachers and principals in rural schools, 207 housewives, 25 nurses and 6 preachers.

JOE BROWN STARS IN SLAPSTICK COMEDY

"Local Boy Makes Good"
Coming to Appleton Theatre Next Week

Joe E. Brown, whose phenomenally successful appearances in the theatres all over the country, prove that he can be just as funny and likable off the screen as on it, is at his funniest—though not his slapstick funniest—in "Local Boy Makes Good," the first National comedy-drama in which he will be seen at the Appleton Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

In "Local Boy Makes Good," Joe E. is seen as John Miller—a timid and near-sighted clerk in a college bookstore, a man afraid of his own shadow, and secretly in love with Julia Winters, a pretty co-ed whom he has never really seen—but whom he woos secretly by violently passing love letters which he writes but never mails. One of these missives is sent to Julia without John's knowledge.

John Miller, in his letters to Julia, has described himself as the champion athlete of the school—and "due time he is horrified to get a reply from Julia saying that she is coming to the track meet between the school to witness his prowess.

About this time, Marjorie Blake, a former classmate of Julia, comes to the school in the store. She rather likes the timid John Miller and urges him to try for the track squad—if only to make good his assertions.

He gets his try-out—attempts to hurl a javelin, and in so doing all most does to Wally Pierce, speediest sprinter of the school. Wally, in anger, chases him and those who see the time the two make at once decide that they both must enter the lists and win the track meet.

On the day of the race he refuses to run against Spike and it is only Marjorie's kiss and the "rubbing alcohol" she mixes in his drink—that fills him with false courage and—but the astonishing things that happen after that must not be told. It is enough to say that Joe E. has never been so appealingly amusing as in "Local Boy Makes Good."

Navigation is at low point just now

Expect Season on Lakes to Close in About Two Weeks

Superior —P— Activity in navigation circles at the head of the lakes, although on a lower scale than the past seven months than in previous seasons, is at an exceptionally low point these days, with the shipping industry for 1931 expected to be brought to a close within two weeks.

Already some steamship lines have ceased operations, while only small shipments and receipts of commodities are reported, while weather conditions at Duluth and Superior as well as other ports on the Great Lakes have been reported good for navigation, business conditions do not warrant continued shipping, vessel men reported.

Some indication as to the activity in local navigation is the report that the Steamer Winah which plies between Duluth and Isle Royale and intermediate Lake Superior ports, has tied up for the winter the earliest in its history. The Winah usually continues until well into December but this year tied up Nov. 8.

Practically all shipments of ore from Duluth and Superior have been completed for the 1931 navigation season and the total for the Lake Superior district will show a material decrease in comparison to recent seasons. Grain shipments still are being made but not on a large scale, while coal receipts from lower lake ports are not large.

Midnight November 30 is the time the regular insurance rates for large vessels on the Great Lakes expire, with special rates granted for the first week or two in December. There is very little local road traffic, if any, vessels will continue interlake navigation after the last of November.

12 STUDENTS ENTER SCHOOL SONG CONTEST

About 12 Roosevelt Junior high school students have entered the school song contest which closed Friday. Jay I. Williams, music instructor, and Leo Gardner, sponsor of the school newspaper, will be the judges. The winning song will be announced Tuesday.

Most of the melodies have been taken from college songs, according to the school office and several of them have words written to popular melodies. Only one song is originally composed in music as well as the words, written by Miss Armabel Wolf, music grade student. The title of her song is "O'vard Roosevelt." Miss Wolf recently wrote a concert play on Loan of Arc which was presented in the assembly.

U. S. NAVY MEMORIAL RISES IN FRENCH PORT

Brest, France — (P) — A granite tower 154 feet high, commemorating the services of American sailors in the world war, is being erected here. It probably will be dedicated on Washington's birthday.

Under the supervision of the American battle monuments commission, of which General Pershing is chairman, fifteen Italian sculptors, directed by Benito Quattrocchi, are putting the final touches on the monument.

Four giant eagles will top the tower and bas-reliefs will adorn the sides. The cost is estimated at $250,000.

Look Who's Coming

Believe it or not Mr. Ripley, the gentleman behind these "spec" is none other than Joe E. Brown, coming to the Appleton Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday, in "Local Boy Makes Good," his new First National comedy. The film is labeled as one of the funniest of Mr. Brown's laugh-packed career. In the supporting cast are Dorothy Lee, Ruth Hall, Eddie Nugent, Edward Woods and Wade Boteler.

TEACHERS STAGE ANNUAL BANQUET

The annual teachers banquet will begin at 5:30 Monday evening at Castle hall in order that Appleton teachers may attend the Tibbitt concert later in the evening. The program is being arranged by Miss Katherine Spence, general chairman, and Leland DeForge, president of the Appleton Education association.

The program which has been arranged for the banquet is a surprise one which will be informal in nature. About 150 teachers are expected to attend.

63 BIRTHS REPORTED BY CITY PHYSICIAN

Sixty-three births were registered by Dr. F. P. Doherty, city physician, during October. He issued 13 marriage and 20 death certificates, and 50 burial permits.

Dr. Doherty made 145 calls at the poor department, street department, and city home, 10 calls investigating contagious disease, and 240 telephone calls to the poor and health departments. He took four diphtheria cultures, attended a fractured foot at the street department, and took care of one confinement case.

DOWLING STICKS TO CODE IN NEW FILM

"Keep It Clean" His Motto; "Honeymoon Lane" Hits Expectations

Success as a movie star came to Eddie Dowling with the release, about two years ago, of his very first picture—"The Rainbow Man." According to preview critics he doubles the measure of that success in "Honeymoon Lane," his second picture, which comes to the Elite Theatre on Monday next for a run of 3 days.

Dowling is a firm believer in the theory that the character that goes with carefully-devised simplicity in theatrical or film presentations is the most effective method of keeping audiences in a rosy glow of happiness.

It is not an easy production course to follow—what with the film capital abounding in story material, of a spicy, or a thriller, or a blood-and-thunder nature. But Dowling holds to it rigidly. In more than a score of years as an actor and playwright he has never wavered from his purpose and as a result he has never been associated, in any way, with what is known in critical circles and along "heartbreak lane" as a "top" production.

"Honeymoon Lane" played a long run to thousands of people in New York and then played to thousands more on tour. The picture contains all the essentially charming ingredients of the original hit, with these ingredients revamped for the technique of the film.

The cast includes such stars as June Collyer, Raymond Hatton, Ray Dooley and Noah Beery.

WOMEN UNION WORKERS

Washington—Organized labor unions of the United States now number among their workers a total of 600,000 women, according to a report of the Women's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor. This is but a small portion of the total number of workers, however, there being about 11,000,000 in the country.

"Sweepstakes" is Racing Success

James Gleason, Eddie Quillan and Marion Nixon in a scene from "Sweepstakes" at the Elite Theatre today and Sunday.

"SWEEPSTAKES" IS COMEDY THRILLER

Romance, thrills, laughs and pathos walked hand in hand last night when "Sweepstakes," RKO Pathe picture starring Eddie Quillan, had its initial showing at the Elite Theatre today and Sunday.

Laid against the glamorous background of the turf, one of the greatest romances brought to the talking screen in recent months was unfolded before a responsive audience.

The story concerns a young jockey who is in the midst of a blissful romance with a cabaret singer when he comes face to face with disgrace and is branded as a dishonest rider. How the girl ultimately helps him to overcome the handicap and stage a comeback makes "Sweepstakes" a comedy-drama of first-rate entertainment quality.

Eddie Quillan gives an unusually clever performance as the jockey, while Marion Nixon's sweet personality met with hearty approval at the hands of the first night audience.

A carload of laughs greeted James Gleason's amusing characterization as the "trainer." Lew Cody, Frederic Buron and Paul Hurst offered commendable performances.

"A HOLY TERROR" IS REAL ENTERTAINMENT

Thrilling action, suspense, mystery and romance relieved by much comedy promise to make "A Holy Terror," new Fox outdoor production, which will be shown at the Elite Theatre today and Sunday, one of the most entertaining pictures to be shown on this screen this season.

George O'Brien, who has made an enviable reputation for himself in roles of the types such as his portrayals in this picture, and Sally Eilers, have the co-featured leading roles. Others in the cast include Ruta La Roy, Humphrey Bogart, James Kirkwood, Stanley Fields, Robert Warwick, Richard Tucker, Earl Pingree and Walter Hiers. Irving Cummings directed.

Organist Returns

Marshall Tooley, organist at the Fox theatre for the past two years, returns to the organ console Sunday, bringing with him the latest in organ novelties, direct from Chicago. He has been in Chicago for the past two weeks, visiting theatre and broadcasting stations. Tooley opens Sunday with his own idea on "Opera vs. Jazz."

FAMOUS MYSTERY THRILLER COMING

"Frankenstein"—to Play at Warner's Appleton Theatre

"Frankenstein," the man who made a monster, is coming to Warner's Appleton Theatre for four days starting with the Midnite Pre-view to-nite. If on the other hand you like an unusual thrill, you are certain to find it in "Frankenstein."

The story of this picture was written as a result of a contest held over 100 years ago among three writers which could write the most fantastic story. Mary Shelley, P. B. Shelley, her poet husband, and Lord Byron were the three contestants. Mary Shelley won with her "Frankenstein." Ever since its original publication this book has been a best seller. The story tells of a half-man scientist who constructs a mechanical giant and gives him a brain—and life!

The cast in "Frankenstein" is one that is hard to equal. Each player was especially selected for their part. Colin Clive, who made such a hit in "Journey's End" has the leading role. Supporting him are Max Clarke of "Waterloo Bridge" and John Boles, and not forgetting Boris Karloff who plays the monster.

Fifty-five people have been killed and 10,794 injured in Hollywood since a dog at Canton, O., by its stunts.

LETTERMEN ON CAGE SQUAD TO REPORT MONDAY

Coach Little Imparts Fundamentals to 15 Candidates During Past Week

Kaukauna—Basketball lettermen will report to Coach Paul E. Little at the high school Monday evening to begin practice for the season. Coach Little has been working with a squad of 15 men for the past week teaching fundamentals, and has asked all of last year's squad to report next Monday. With seven lettermen returning to the squad Coach Little has hopes for a very successful season.

One letterman will be lost to the squad for several weeks, having submitted to an operation at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Appleton, for appendicitis. The letterman is Van Dyke, forward. Other lettermen who will report at Monday's practice are Clarence Koch, center; Jack Van Lieshout, guard; Ross Farwell, guard; Arthur Sager, forward; Donald Dix, forward, and George Schwendeman, forward. All saw action last season. Koch, Van Lieshout, Sager and Farwell are six footers.

The team finished with a 500 per cent in the Neenah tournament last year, although it was a rather disheartening season. Considerable experience has been gained, however. The opening conference game will be with Clintonville Jan. 8. Plans for a game with the alumni are being formed. The alumni probably will be played Dec. 15.

LIFE'S ODDITIES

By George Clark

"Sure, this time of year is our busy season. But you can't explain business to a woman."

Russia Has Big Canning Factory--But Can't Run It

Mineral Point—(AP)—Russia has the largest cannery in the world, but N. C. Ritchey assures Wisconsin it need not worry about competition. Ritchey declares the Russian workers are so ignorant it will be many years—if ever—before they or their children, can be trained to operate the canning factories efficiently.

Ritchey has just recently returned from Russia where he was induced to spend 15 months supervising the erection of canneries, installation of machinery and the planting of crops to can.

"Eighteen months was enough," said Ritchey, who had the option of extending the contract to five years. "In 1920, the year I went over the canning crops were lost through drought and the big factories did not turn out one can. In 1931 growing conditions were favorable in

"BIG POND" WILL BE GIVEN IN JANUARY

"The Big Pond," popular Broadway play by George Middleton and A. E. Thomas, will be given at Wilson Junior high school in January. The Community Players connected with the extension division of the state university will present the three-act comedy.

The play had a successful Broadway season and a second popular run in Chicago. Critics have praised the play as an excellent comedy sparking with drama.

The story centers about a young girl, the daughter of a wealthy American rubber manufacturer who meets and falls in love with a young French nobleman who is rich in title but poor in cash. In order to break up the alliance the father offers the count a position in his enterprising business, which develops the hilarity of the play in the manner in which the Frenchman encounters American business methods. Students of the school will have charge of the ticket sale for the play.

CLIP BEAKS TO STOP CANNIBALISM

Halt Practice by Using Effective Method to Check Habit

BY W. F. WINSEY

Clipping the upper beaks of 500 offenders in one of the large flocks of Outagamie-co. recently, stopped a bad case of cannibalism and changed the flesh eaters into industrious layers. Some poultry owners claim that cannibalism is due to overcrowding in laying houses, too much light, to toe picking, and to a lack of the right feed mixture. Whatever is the cause of the d. strictive habit, the thing to do is to stop it first by removing the offenders and the victims from the flock and others as fast as they show up and to clip their upper beaks.

To clip the beak of a hen, cut into the beak from a side with an eighth of an inch on either side with a pocket knife, and tear the point of the beak off with the blade. Bleeding indicates that too much of the beak has been removed.

Escaped Monkey Creates Havoc In Barber Shop

New York—(CFA)—There was much monkey business in Greenwich village the other day. Lugubrious wails coming from the cellar of 130 Waverly-pl caused a number of calls for the police that brought four cops on the double time. There was no crime afoot but one monkey, undoubtedly a pet escaped from some nearby home, was very much afraid. When the cops rushed him, he did a single wingback and reversed the entire field, going through the cops and out the door like a missile. Albie Booth, then followed a chase remarkably reminiscent of the old Keystone comedy movies. At Charles and Seventhave the monkey of the law won by a ruse, after a huddle. They decided to take the monkey in a nearby barber shop to which one of their number had a key. This done they dashed to report the affair and seek the Simian's owner. When the barber arrived to open the shop for the day he found that one small monkey, at the moment hanging from a chandelier and grinning apishly at him, had emptied all the drawers of towels, torn many to shreds, furiously lathered the barber chair, had a grand time tossing shaving mugs at the plate glass mirrors to the permanent disability of both, and smeared lotions, creams, facial mists and talcum powder over all, much as a good housewife smears the kung over the top of a cake.

The monkey is now in a bare cell in the S. P. C. A. headquarters, the police are waiting their beats, the barber is busy with dusting and mop and some one is looking for his missing pet. The latter, if wise, will maintain silence and decide all knowledge of the cute little ape.

Chapter 23
SCANDAL'S COINAGE

IT WAS an exceedingly rough crossing but Venice didn't mind it.

There were some attractive-looking young people abroad but she had to wait until some one spoke to her. She could never bring herself to commence a conversation with any one. Sitting bundled in her steamer chair the second day out, a mummy in plaid, a pleasant-faced girl stopped and smiled at her.

"Would you like to make a fourth at shuffleboard?" she asked.

Venice coloured at this sudden approach.

"Why—yes. Thank you," she scrambled out of her chair and stumbled over a trailing end of the rug trying to think what she should say next.

"It's my brother and another man," the girl remarked.

"I don't think I'm very good at it," murmured Venice.

"No one can be with this rolling. This is my brother Mr. Bennet, and that's Mr. Cogswell, Miss—er—"

"Muir," Venice supplied. She felt droopingly embarrassed at the doubtful situation. I mustn't be, she thought, here I've become a person of some importance.

"You've drawn a dud," she smiled at Mr. Cogswell, pushing her disk just short of the chalked board.

"You can't have everything," he returned with a glance that plainly said he thought she was good to look at.

This left Venice completely deflated and she quickly shoved forward another disk to cover her lack of return.

"It's not your turn," he protested.

"Oh," said Venice.

The game soon became an impossibility with the rolling of the ship and Mr. Bennet suggested that they resort to the smoking room.

Venice sat silently at the table and watched Mr. Cogswell switch his attentions gradually but definitely from her to the Bennet girl. As she noticed this the old awkwardness grew and she lost herself in a miserable observation of the other two laughing and talking, tossing provocative bits of persiflage across an invisible net to be tossed promptly back again by the one who could think the quickest.

"How long have you been over?" Venice managed to break in upon the chaff to ask young Bennet.

"Two months. We spent the entire time except for a week in Paris at St. Jean."

"Did you really? I was visiting for a month between Biarritz and St. Jean. I'd just argued that part of the country, don't you?" Venice slowly came to life with a theme in which she could take part.

Young Bennet started.

"Muir," he murmured. "Muir. Are you Venice Muir?"

She nodded.

The others had stopped their badinage at this.

"Why," exclaimed the girl, "we read about you in the papers."

They all eyed her anxiously.

"Then," Venice looked away. Her sudden disclosure had brought her the greatest of surprises. A sort of measure. It was working. The hint of scandal had awakened their interest in her. Their quick notice dispelled her raggish stress. She smiled brightly.

"Summer is a demoralizing season and the newspapers misconstrued things," she said.

From that moment on she had a glorious trip. This girl, who had been doing things happen to her through the papers, was her friend. There was something to her that she could not fathom, could not quite know about. At least one man had loved her madly and died at her account. Venice's manners were innumerable at the dinner. She had frequent invitations for brides, shuffleboard or a turn around the deck. All the sudden eager attention went to her head like wine.

At the deck there were several who stood by her hand in showers of gas at parking and asked her address.

Mrs. Spaulding met her and they went to the Park Avenue apartment together. Nora opened the door and took her bags. Inside the familiar rooms something suddenly snapped inside of Venice. She could see her mother in the big chair over there, visualize her standing by the window. She unexpectedly sank down on the sofa and burst into tears.

"There, there, honey," murmured Mrs. Spaulding, sitting down beside her and putting an arm across her shoulders. "Of course it's hard at first. You mustn't let it hurt."

"No," sobbed Venice. "Will you stay to lunch, Aunt Beth?"

"No, thank you, dear. But won't you come to dinner? Nolly's dying to see you and Ernest will be there."

Venice dried her eyes.

"I'd love to," she said. The shock of that first impression had faded and she knew sudden interest in the lives of the friends to whom she was returning.

Flowers came from Lola and Jerry, fruit from Mrs. Goadby and a letter of welcome from Uncle Livingston in Richmond. There was something warm and pleasant about her homecoming.

Riding across the Park to the Spalding's for dinner she felt happily excited at seeing Nolly again and meeting Ernest Price. What sort of a young man had been able to forget Nolly's infirmity and appreciate the real sweetness within? She hoped that Nolly would be unchanged, still naive and eager.

Nolly opened the door to her ring. She wore the beige velvet that Venice had given her and looked exactly the same as ever, her small puckish face bright with smiles, the little tendrils of hair jutting out on either cheek.

"Venice! This is too heavenly!" They kissed warmly.

"For the bride," cried Venice, handing her a package.

"Oh, how good of you!"

Venice followed Nolly down the long bowling-alley hall and into her little bedroom.

"You look gorgeous, Venice. And that smart little black hat perched away back on your hair. I suppose they're wearing them that way now. And what a sumptuous dress. You look like a picture from Vogue." She was untying Venice's present and at the sight of the French nightgowns elaborate with lace, she gave a little cry.

"Oh, how simply marvelous. Thank you ever so much."

"That's all right. Tell me about Ernest. It is too wonderful. Nolly."

"And he doesn't even mind Papa's dog. He gave me a new stick as a wedding present for him the other day."

Venice felt that she was going to like Ernest immensely.

"You've got a ring. Isn't it beautiful?" Nolly held out a small thin ring bearing an inconspicuous schizoid-diamond in a meagre setting.

"Imagine!" said Venice. There she thought, that's typical of my social failure. I never say the sincere things when I should.

It didn't matter in the instant. Nolly was much too happy to lie.

"But tell me about yourself—"

"Marcus. It must have been dreadful."

"Yes," said Venice. "And I had been lovely to me."

"Do go on. I knew you'd be so spectacular one day, Venice."

Somewhat Venice could not see this remark to its fullest.

"I've been," she said, "so beneficent." She had said, "I've been so beneficent," saying, "That was what we were loved friends."

"Don't go modest on me, Venice. You can't fool me. And what about that American? Oh, some one? Lola's been pressuring you all over town."

Venice knew a vast secret was factored.

"He was even nicer to me than Renee de Thamarier. He was like the Crows and he was much more of a sort of charming people. He—"

Nolly, Nolly, Mrs. Spaulding came calling with the "Ernest must be here" call along Venice. He's been waiting about you. He says he can't get on at a party."

"Nolly," Venice was startled.

The two girls went down the hall to the living room. A young man stepped forward holding out a hand.

"How lovely," Venice murmured. Venice knew her Adamant.

Where has Venice met Mr. Ernest? She starts Lola advertising her to meet.

BABSON OUTLINES 12 REASONS FOR BETTER BUSINESS

Financial Expert Shows Why
Present Upturn Will Be Permanent

BY ROGER W. BABSON
Babson Public Affairs. People have been fooled so many times by optimistic statements that it is wondered whether the present improvement in commodity prices, stock and bond values, and other things is justified. In other words, is this present uplift merely a flash in the pan or has there been a fundamental improvement in the situation? Of course, two or three very reactions must be expected between now and the elections of next November. Hence, it would not be safe today to forecast that the bottom of the "U"-shaped bear market has yet been completely worked out. I am willing to state, however, that we have seen the worst; and are now coming out of the woods; furthermore, that the better feeling of today is justified by fundamental conditions. For this statement I give the following twelve reasons:

1. Less hoarding and fewer bank failures. Bank failures, which a few weeks ago were running at the rate of twelve a day, have been reduced to three or four a day. The setting-up of the National Credit Corporation was a big step toward restoring confidence in our banks and stopping "runs." Hoarding also has decreased as shown by the reduction in the treasury money in circulation statement. Furthermore, President Hoover's program for twelve central discount banks for home and farm mortgages should help not only the frozen mortgage situation, but also put new life into real estate and residential building. Small farmers will receive direct benefit, as well as home owners, banks, and building and loan institutions. Also Federal Land Banks will receive additional government capital to ease their position, thus helping farm mortgages.

2. A conservative Congress is assured. With the Democrats in charge of the house and the Republicans in charge of the senate very little, if any, harmful legislation can be enacted. Furthermore, both parties, in view of the coming election, will join on constructive legislation in order to save their own reputations.

3. England's troubles largely over. The overwhelmingly conservative election assures us of good leaders for England, which nation is still the world's financial center. About sixty per cent of the total foreign trade of the world is carried on in sterling.

4. Railroads are being helped. The freight rate increase, while not all that the roads desired, will prevent receiverships. The real cure, however, will come through gradual readjustment in wages and a gain in traffic as business slowly improves.

5. Commodity prices have started upward. Increases in wheat, corn, cotton, silver, etc., will be followed by advances in other commodities such as rubber, copper, paper, and similar basic materials.

6. Increases in silver prices. The spectacular increase in silver prices has raised world purchasing power. One-half the population of the world still uses silver for money and their money is now worth 25 per cent more than it was two months ago.

7. Farmers have been saved. The farmers have been saved from utter collapse. Increases in prices of wheat, corn, and cotton have raised agricultural income about $500,000,000 and saved hundreds of thousands from financial difficulties.

8. European situation is gradually righting itself. One of the great difficulties has been lack of faith in the league of nations, for which lack of faith Japan has been largely responsible. I believe the league will function in this emergency. Japan will back down and the net result will be greatly to the prestige of the league. This will foster efforts toward world peace and reduction of armaments.

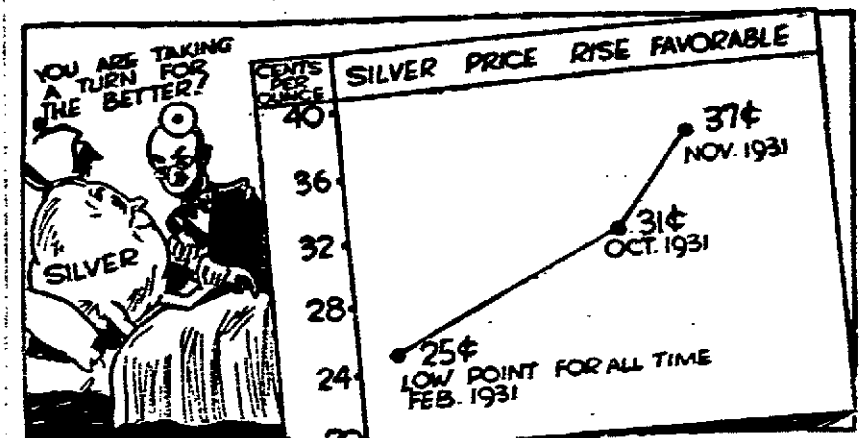

9. Floating supply of bonds and stocks small. There is a very small floating supply of bonds and stocks at present. This is a very important factor because any pick-up in buying brings rapidly higher prices. Added to this is the fact that corporations have reduced expenses to such low figures that any increased business would result in materially larger profits.

10. Recovery in bond prices. Many second-grade bonds have advanced sharply and are now selling at twenty-five points above their October lows. While the bond market is still characterized by nervous fluctuations, the tone is distinctly better than it was a month ago and prices generally are higher. A recovery in the bond market is always one of the first indications of improvement in the general situation.

11. Better movement of consumer goods. Cotton cloth, men's and women's clothing, shoes, and other consumer staples are now moving in larger volume. Replacement demand is making itself felt. This call is still for low and moderate priced merchandise, but the actual number of units being sold is greater, even though dollar values are below last year. November should show further gains in retail trade.

12. Getting back to fundamentals. One great reason for optimism is the lessons we have learned from the depression. People have at last got the right attitude on fundamentals. Everybody now recognizes that hard work is the only basis of real prosperity. We tried specula-

See Significance In Rise In Price Of Silver Metal

BY ALLARD SMITH
Executive Vice President, Union Trust Co., Cleveland
Events over the coming months alone can prove whether October marked the state of business recovery, following the worst depression in 50 years. That it did an about face in sentiment in many commodity and financial markets is already apparent. Such a change, after great depressions of the past, usually have signaled that the economic tide is turning.

Advancing wheat prices have led America out of several periods of bad times. Improved textile business also has been one of the auguries that the worst is over.

October, a dark month for many industries, witnessed genuine activity for textiles, with sales of cotton cloth at 47 per cent over production, 21 per cent over stocks on hand and unfilled orders 52 per cent above the preceding month.

It has remained for silver, as well as wheat, to provide at once cheer and no little bewilderment to financial observers. It is traditional that silver is always likely to be one of the first to indicate the trend of commodity prices. From a high point of $1.37 an ounce in 1919, silver dropped to a low for all times of 25c this year. It had recovered to around 37 cents early in November.

All the causes for this advance have not been adequately explained, but in the last analysis it most likely represents improvement in world-wide confidence. Practically the rise has added probably more than $1,000,000,000 to the purchasing power of about half the world's population, in China and India, where most of the world's monetary silver is held.

The recoveries for silver, wheat, textiles and other commodities are of far-reaching significance. They carry promise of reversal in the long disheartening fall of prices which has paralyzed commerce, piled ruinous losses upon industry, and clogged the channels of credit. If these tendencies continue they will go a long way in restoring confidence, the lack of which has been one of the great obstacles to business revival.

INVITE PUBLIC TO VISIT GREENHOUSE OF FLORAL COMPANY

Permanent Exhibit Will Show Proper Pieces for All Occasions

For a pleasant visit to a modern new greenhouse establishment, drive out to the Broadway Florists at 1410 W. Wisconsin-ave. (Highway 10) tomorrow.

At that time, the Broadway's residential conservatory will be opened for public inspection. It will contain floral pieces for every occasion, funerals, weddings and the like. It is a permanent display, available to visitors at all times.

Managing this concern is Elmer E. Meiers, with five years of experience in this and with landscaping work. Mr. Meiers, who specializes in rock garden planning and construction, recently completed extensive work in this field in California.

The present arrangement of the Broadway Florists represents but the beginning of plans for the future. Next spring an addition to the greenhouse is planned, together with other work to beautify the grounds.

Care for Flower Needs. These florists, however, are prepared to give excellent service to people who want flowers and plants now. A telephone call will bring any type of flower or plant needed for home or other occasions. The Broadway telephone number is 5432.

In addition to greenhouse space, the Broadway concern owns five acres of splendid soil on which to cultivate plants and flowers next spring. It also has access to a large supply of stone for the building of rock gardens. In a natural resource, this firm ranks second to none.

The Broadway Florists have already achieved a reputation for the fine fruits, vegetables and berries and during the regular seasons, supply many customers with choice products.

The public is invited to visit the Broadway Florists tomorrow — or at any other time — to inspect the residential flower conservatory which has nearly reached completion. A telephone call to 5039 will bring prompt information and service.

MONUMENT, 555 FEET HIGH, IS CLEANED

Washington—(AP)—This was a tall job as well as a long one. The Washington monument, towering 555 feet in Potomac park just south of the White House, has just been cleaned inside.

LT. COL. U. S. Grant III, director of public buildings and parks, has had all tablets and memorial stones brightened up and stains removed by chemicals.

Five excesses, extravagant living, shirking of duty, and laxness in business integrity. These things we found brought depression and suffering. Now we are ready to try the other course, and by industry, economy and honesty, to work out our own economic salvation.

To those who are still wandering aimlessly in the depths of pessimism I want to give this word of courage. The depression is already more than sixty per cent completed. Statistics indicate that the worst has been seen. History has never known a case when the depression area exceeded the preceding prosperity area and since this is so we may now expect gradual improvement.

PARTY FINANCIAL PLAN STUDIED BY DEMOCRAT CHIEFS

Group Expected to Back
Higher Income Taxes in Larger Brackets

Washington—(AP)—The prospect of a big boost in taxes on large scale incomes and inheritances grew today as Democratic leaders in congress worked on a party financial program.

Although they do not intend to complete the program until after they learn what President Hoover intends to ask of congress, there was every indication the Democrats would commit themselves to finding in the higher income brackets the revenue relief needed by the government.

The importance of the Democratic program lies particularly in the prospect that the party will control the house. There all revenue legislation must originate, and it will be drafted by the ruling majority.

The Republicans also are in general agreement that a tax increase must be made but a good many still are opposed to bearing down on big incomes. Chairman Smoot of the senate finance committee, for instance, has proposed increasing income taxes all along the line and imposing a selective sales tax on luxuries.

The amount to be raised by added taxes still is to be determined. The treasury's deficit for the year already is over $700,000,000 and it will grow, but some of the shortage may be taken care of by further borrowing.

The Democratic program is to extend as much as possible to all the big issues the will confront the congress. Organization of the house will place heavy responsibility on the party and its leaders are anxious to impress the country with their ability to function effectively in times of stress. They seek particularly to avoid the spectacle of a majority divided upon vital questions.

Drafting of the program began in discreet privacy with a meeting at the home of Senator Walsh of Montana. There the talk covered finances, unemployment relief, railroad legislation, tariff and the government appropriations. Finally decision on the major policies will await the return to Washington of the senate leader of the party, Robinson of Arkansas, but in the meantime considerable unanimity on some questions was reported.

TABER PLEASED BY GRANGE HARMONY

National Master Lauds
"Unanimity of Thought"
at Convention

Madison—(AP)—The convention of the National Grange which closed here late yesterday demonstrated a remarkable "unanimity of thought among organized farmers," Louis J. Taber, Columbus, Ohio, national master, said before leaving the city today.

During the 10-day session there was not a single roll call demanded in voting on the 50 resolutions and 29 committee reports.

"Delegates came here from 33 states in every section of the country and the fact that many of them prepared to advocate the same ideas shows that the general situation of agriculture is the same throughout the land," Mr. Taber said.

The national master said the Grange had set a goal of 600 new branches for the ensuing year. Before adjourning the Grange expressed appreciation of the welcome Wisconsin had given the delegates. Mr. Taber said the steady flow of telegrams and letters from all parts of the country that followed each major act of the convention indicated that people were looking to the Grange for a sound program.

North Carolina will be host to the National Grange at the next convention to be held next November.
